TV PRODUCTION JN820

CAMERON JULL

Brief outline of programme

A game show in which the contestants are required to give the wrong answers to the questions provided. Otherwise they will be penalised and eventually eliminated from the show if they give the correct answer no more than three times, following a similar pattern to the 'three strikes' system.

Each panel has four contestants who cooperate as a team to give the most ludicrous, incorrect answers to questions. There are two rounds in which different topics will be given on a random basis.

Points will be tallied throughout the show. The contestant with the most will be deemed the winner and will win a prize (varied between a summer holiday similar to most game shows)

Location description

My TV programme was originally going to be recorded in the KMTV studio on the University of Kent's Medway campus. Panellists would be standing up against a platform in which their first name and their points total were displayed.

Equipment list

- Video camera kit
- Green screen
- Coloured LED lights (blue, purple & yellow)
- Panels
- Category wheel
- Buzzers
- Camera lighting

Risk assessment

There is a substantial risk of injury with cables, tripods, wires, and panels lying about in the studio. As a result, there would be a qualified First Aider present to ensure that the contestants, presenter, and the production crew are kept safe and need help in the case of an emergency.

Technology not working – all camera kits/green screens/LED lighting and buzzers will be thoroughly checked to ensure that they are working before production begins. This will be done routinely between each interval.
